Telephone Skills & Customer Service

Thousands of pounds are lost each year by poor handling of telephone enquires. The majority of telephone calls could be dealt with better if staff were taught to see things from the customer's perspective. Customers and potential customers who are handled well will call again and bring more business to your organisation.

This one day course takes delegates through telephone techniques and live simulated two way telephone calls. The course is highly participative, with telephone role play, group discussions and tutor lead tutorial. Delegates will cover the key principles of good customer service.

Who should attend?
